Walnut Creek, CA—Formtek, Inc., a leading provider of Enterprise Content Management (ECM) software and implementation services, announced today that it has signed an agreement with the Oracle Corporation to join its Oracle PartnerNetwork Program (OPN) for the distribution of Application Specific Full Use (ASFU) Oracle database software. This relationship will simplify the purchasing and implementation of Formtek's content and document management products and solutions for users who do not already have Oracle software.

"As an OPN partner we're able to tap into technical developments at the Oracle Corporation. We will stay current with Oracle database changes and rollouts and get early updates about Oracle's overall technical direction," said Dick Weisinger, Formtek's Chief Technologist. "Oracle has always been the market leader in the relational database space and Formtek has a long track record of developing software around Oracle's database technology, as evidenced by our current release of Formtek | Orion™ supporting the Oracle 10g database. Oracle's leadership role in promoting Java development and Java standards with items such as JDeveloper, SOA/Web Services, BPEL, JSR-168 portals, and ADF Faces complements Formtek's technical direction. These technologies are powerful tools that we use to create advanced content management and business process solutions for our customers."

OPN is a global business network of more than 16,000 companies that deliver innovative enterprise software solutions based on Oracle software. Through access to Oracle's premier products, education, technical services, and sales support, Oracle partners are able to offer customers leading-edge solutions backed by Oracle's position as the world's largest enterprise software company.
